STANFORD, Calif.- Chasson Randle's 21 points led four players in double figures as Stanford overwhelmed South Dakota State 92-60 on Sunday night at Maples Pavilion in a regional game to conclude the Progressive Legends Classic.

Responding with an emphatic statement following Tuesday's 88-67 loss to Pittsburgh in the tournament's championship game, Stanford (6-2) was unstoppable on offense from the opening tip. The Cardinal shot 59.6 percent overall, 7-14 from long distance and 17-22 from the foul line while dishing out 15 assists.

The Cardinal put the game out of reach with its best first-half performance in six years. Stanford built a 58-24 halftime lead, its most points in any half since ambushing Harvard 63-28 over the first 20 minutes on the way to a 111-56 rout back on Nov. 8, 2007.

Anthony Brown added 19 points and Josh Huestis pitched in with 13, as both finished two rebounds shy of notching a double-double. Stefan Nastic chipped in with 10 points, making all four of his attempts from the field and finishing 2-3 from the foul line with three rebounds.

Stanford also played smothering defense, limiting South Dakota State (3-6) to just 33.8 percent shooting overall and a 6-25 mark from three-point range. The Jackrabbits were also forced into 15 turnovers.

After scoring the first 13 points of the game, Stanford extended its lead to 30-9 following a layup from Robbie Lemons midway through the first half.

Leading 33-17, Stanford embarked on a 25-7 scoring run to close out a first half that featured 66.7 percent (24-36) shooting.

The Cardinal's biggest lead of the game was 39 points, moving in front 67-28 following a pair of free throws from Randle with 15:42 remaining.

All five Stanford starters played less than 30 minutes while 11 players total saw action off the bench. The Cardinal was without the services of Aaron Bright (shoulder) and Grant Verhoeven (hip).
